We have all sinned and deserve God's judgment. God, the Father, sent His only Son to satisfy that judgment for those who believe in Him. Jesus, the creator and eternal Son of God, who lived a sinless life, loves us so much that He died for our sins, taking the punishment that we deserve, was buried, and rose from the dead according to the Bible.

In addition, God is all-powerful and can do all things. However, this does not mean He will do all things. He has said He cannot sin or be tempted, for example (James 1:13). He will not break His promises. He will not create another god, since God is one (Deuteronomy 6:4-5).

Are all things really possible with God?

As he clearly states at the outset of his book, It's Really All About God is not a discussion about religious pluralism, it is a discussion about interdependence. About recognizing that only an intentional dream which acknowledges the cumulative histories and aspirations of all of us has the hope of bringing us closer to God.
