Mindblind Jennifer Roy

I expected Mindblind to be similar to Artemis Fowl, minus the fairies and Butler, but it was not. Ms. Jennifer Roy managed to make Mindblind similar, yet completely different from the Artemis Fowl series. The similarities are quite obvious. Nathaniel and Artemis are obnoxious know-it-all brats who are trying to find their own place in the world.

Mindblind by Jennifer Roy - Goodreads

About the Author Jennifer Roy and her husband, Greg, have a remarkable 8-year-old son, Adam, who not only inspired the character of Nathaniel Clark, but also created the "Amazing Race" charts and narrative at the back of MindBlind.

Roy writes with a strong voice and the authenticity of one who knows children with Asperger's, yet Nathaniel's problems and concerns can and should reach a wider audience. The book is comparable in scope and effectiveness to Mark Haddon's The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Nighttime (Doubleday, 2003), yet contains its own unique character and story.

MINDBLIND | Kirkus Reviews

Jennifer Roy's Mindblind is middle-grade fiction, but there are some lessons for the parents here as well, especially those who could use an empathy booster-shot. The book is narrated by Nathaniel Clark a 14-year-old autistic savant. Nathaniel already has his bachelor's degree, and when the novel opens, he's applying to graduate schools.

Mindblind by Jennifer Roy Lynn: There is an irritating new rule about new book reserves at my public library. Well, that is another story but because of that it sometimes it takes me a while to get my hands on a book and that is the case with Mindblind (Marshall Cavendish 2010) I wanted to read this since I a) saw the stunning cover in a review and b) read Michael Cart's review.
